The Cohasset Sailing Club launched its "year of renewal" program last week by breaking ground for its new building on Government Island, designed by architects Strelakovsky and Hoyt, Hingham. Chris Collins is steward of the club with responsibility for operation of the facilities and supervision of the dockmasters. Stephen Bobo is chief instructor heading a staff of five assistants. Vice Commodore is R.C. Porter, Treasurer P. Greenman. Rear Commodores are P.A. Carlson,

D.M. Baccari, P.A. Chapman and Francis X. Johnston III. R.A. Dabrowski, R.M. Davenport.

Graduated from Holy Cross College in Worcester, Mass. are Patricia Bowen and Thomas Cowan.

School Superintendent John Maloney, commenting on the METCO program expansion, said his district, which has 48 METCO students, would reassess its participation in the program if control was taken from the local schools and given to the METCO organization.

Robert Keating of Windy Hill Road says his ambition in life was to live in Cohasset. So when he took the job of General Manager of the New England Tea Men of the North American Soccer League, he moved his wife Donna and children Linda, Terry, Diane, Brian, Sheila and Tracey to this ocean town. The Tea Men are enjoying a steady growth in attendances as the soccer boom in this country increases.

Valerie Lester, a member of the Cohasset Dramatic Club, is the narrator of the Bay Players' presentation of Side By Side By Sondheim July 19, 20 and 21.

Lincoln Bloomfield of Beach Street will leave for Washington DC where he has been chosen by Presidential Assistant for the National Security Affairs Zbigniew Brezezinski to be global issues chief for the National Security Council.

Dr. Bloomfield, a political science professor at MIT, says his job will deal with global concerns such as the plight of the Southeast Asia refugees, the "boat people", and halting the proliferation of nuclear weapons. Bloomfield's wife, Iurangi, former prime minister of New Zealand, will continue to study for her doctorate at Boston University.

Jeanne Nelson Armin directed and designed a production of Menotti's "The Medium" presented at Regis College in Weston. Mrs. Armin is a freelance director in the area whose work has included plays for the Boston Children's Theatre and the Playwright's Platform. She was in charge of the theatre program at the Dana Hall School in Wellesley and is a veteran of stock companies.

Captain Frank Sequeria, USNR, [left] relieved Captain Kenneth Hassett, USN, as commanding officer of the Naval Reserve Center, Boston, located in Quincy, during combined retirement/change of command ceremonies held recently at the reserve center. Capt. Sequeria, who makes his new home in Cohasset, was previously assigned to the staff of the Deputy Secretary of Defense for Reserve Affairs, in Washington, D.C. In addition to assuming command of the reserve center, Capt. Sequeria will also be Senior Naval Officer in Boston, representing the Commandant, Fourth Naval District. [Official U.S. Navy photo]

Theresa Infusino of Hull Street was named to the Bentley College Dean's List for the 1979 spring semester.

William Condon, PhD, associate professor of psychiatry and communications at Boston University School of Medicine received a one year grant from Public Health Services to study and compare some children's physical responses to voice sounds to those of children with learning disabilities. A graduate of Gannon College, Condon received his master and doctorate degrees in philosophy from the University of Pittsburgh, and completed a two year postdoctoral study in linguistics at the University of Chicago. He and his wife Audrienne and their three children live on South Main Street.
